

URGES PROTECTION FOR ALL TRADING BETWEEN AMERICAS

Argentine Ambassador Makes Strong Appeal for Complete Neutralization of Commerce on the Hemisphere.

Complete neutralization of inter-American commerce was the remedy proposed by Ambassador Romulo S. Naon, of Argentina, for some of the evils wrought on international commerce by the European war, the plan being set forth in his speech before the Chamber of Commerce of the United States today.

According to the program, the meeting of the chamber was to conclude with the election of directors this afternoon, but the press of business has made it possible that an extra session will be held this evening or tomorrow morning. Myron T. Herrick, former American ambassador to France, was unable to appear today, as he had promised, a telegram stating that he was confined to his bed with grip.

The address of Dr. Naon, and particularly his plan for full protection of commerce between the Americas, met with hearty response from the delegates, and he was cheered at conclusion.

"It seems to me that the way to meet this serious inconvenience, the getting of ships in sufficient numbers, would be to procure the complete neutralization of inter-American commerce," said the ambassador. "It is undoubtedly not an easy task at the present moment to solve, as we would desire, all the difficulties encountered by the neutral commerce of the world, in view of the conflicting interests of the belligerent countries.

Brooks No Interference. "But there could be no reason which would justify opposition to the maintenance, to the fullest extent and without any hindrance whatsoever, commercial interchange between the ports of our continents. I maintain that the complete neutralization of inter-American commerce ought to be recognized, and therefore I entertain the hope, or more than that, I might say that I feel the certainty that we would be able to have the countries at war agree with us in establishing the rule that during the present war and for a period of several years, exclusively in the trade between American ports shall be subject to search, detention, or capture by a belligerent, no matter what flag she flies, so long as she is engaged exclusively in that commerce.

"With such a rule we should be able to obtain all the vessels we need for the promotion of our commerce with the United States and the other American republics to the maximum, developing and consequently our friendly relations with all of them, and lessening the sorrowful conditions created by the war.

"I have consulted persons whose judgment is valuable as to the most practical form of opening the way to the current of American trade in our country, and all of them agree that the principal condition to be complied with depends exclusively on the persons interested, and that those well-known commercial ability appears to suffer from a lack of adaptation to foreign methods, and they do business of their own ground.

"It appears that American commerce is lacking the elasticity necessary for practicing this system. It has the pride of its own methods, and seeks to impose its conditions. It sends its goods to Buenos Aires as it would to Philadelphia or to Chicago, and if it finds opposition it stands stubborn, resolved to overcome them or to be overcome by them, without bothering about following the course which is indicated to them.

"The problem of closer commercial relations between our countries is a practical question, and it would be wiser, in my opinion, if we were to study reciprocally our commercial methods and characteristics. I venture to believe that a convenient way of attaining this end would be to organize a special Argentine-American Chamber of Commerce in which the parties interested in this task of furthering to the utmost the development of our commercial ties, would study and seek to solve all the problems that such a task would present to us. Organizations of like character exist at present in all the countries of Europe, and have produced great results in the development of the commercial relations between Argentina and those countries. Why not, then, use the same successful means in the furthering of our common interest in the present moment?"

Even though the scarcity of coal tar dyes, made almost exclusively in Germany, is seriously affecting certain American manufacturers, Arthur D. Little does not believe the manufacture of such dyes to be a desirable field for the capital of this country. He read a paper which reviewed at length the difficulties of coal tar dye manufacture and said if the men of this country would put half the energy into certain other lines that it would take to make this line successful the benefits would be almost limitless.

What Boy Wants Two Suits For the Usual Price of One?

That's exactly what this suit sale means; the most remarkable value-giving event of its kind ever presented Washington mothers. Every mother who has two boys and every boy who wants two suits will be interested in the extraordinary economies. It works out this way:

Boys' Yoke Norfolk Knickerbocker Suit . . $4
And One Extra Suit for . . . $1
The Two Suits for . . . $5

There are seven hundred suits to choose from at $4.00; and then you may buy, out of the same group, for an additional $1.00 an extra suit, any pattern or size or style.

All sizes from 6 to 18 years in this big lot. These suits are made to stand the rough usage of outdoor and school wear, and are strongly reinforced and extra well finished. Much better than the usual $4.00 suits sold elsewhere.

Full cut Norfolk coat with stitched-on belt, patched pockets, bottom faced and yoke style. Roomy knickerbocker pants, with taped seams, in semi-peg shape, with strap and buckle bottoms.

Materials consist of heavy winter Fancy Cassimere and Fancy Cheviots, in neat dark patterns, including brown mixtures, gray mixtures, and two-tone colorings, in plaids, stripes, and check designs.
